Costigan Scorns Attack on "Dole," Saying Humans Must Not Starve "While We Quibble."

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—A desperate relief problem which can be met only by federal appropriations was pictured to a Senate committee today by welfare leaders from the nation's three largest cities.

The politically potent issue of direct federal appropriations for assistance to the jobless was placed squarely before Congress by their testimony. It included an estimate that from $600,000,000 to $700,000,000 will be needed in 1932.

This estimate came from Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish charities of Chicago, who emphasized the problem by telling the committee that it would run out of relief funds in February 15.

The welfare workers before a Senate subcommittee which opened hearings today on bills introduced by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Costigan, Democrat, Colorado, to appropriate $250,000,000 and $375,000,000, respectively.

800,000 Jobless.

William Goldsmith, executive secretary of the Welfare Council of New York, testified that 800,000 are unemployed in New York city and said that the effects of starvation faces millions of people.

J. Prentiss Murphy, executive director of the Children's Bureau of Philadelphia, testified that 970,000 were unemployed in Pennsylvania and asserted that in some states would get relief unless it comes from the federal government.

Costigan, who is a member of the subcommittee, opened the hearing with a statement that "distress will have exacted an incalculable toll unless emergency relief lines are immediately enacted by Congress."

"Nothing short of federal assistance, early provided and efficiently and constructively extended, can possibly satisfy the conscience and heart of a safeguarded the good name of America."

Answering objections that his bill proposed "dole," Costigan said "Americans must not starve while we quibble over words." He added that throughout the country's history, public money has been used to provide for the poor.

1,100,000 in Illinois.

Goldschmidt said there are 1,100,000 unemployed in Illinois, and 97,000 families are being aided by charity in Chicago. He estimated the number of families in need remains 150,000 by March. Half of the $10,000 emergency relief fund has been expended and it will be exhausted by February 15, Goldschmidt said.

"Chicago has nothing to carry on."

Mississippi Village Flooded As Angry River Bursts Dike

The bridge leading into Glendora, Miss., is shown inundated by the waters of the Tallahatchie which Monday burst the levee protecting the city and poured into the business district, submerging that area and most of the residential section under from four to six feet of water.

GLENDORA, Miss., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Every able-bodied man in Glendora sent out word that all the several hundred residents were comfortably housed in the higher residential section of the town just beyond the railroad grade and announced that there had been no loss of life.

About daylight two night watchmen reported that the flood fighting committee at Glendora said the protective levee was safe with its wall of water from the Tallahatchie river, but about an hour later 20 feet of the dike caved and the business street of Glendora went under six feet of water.

DR. TAFT TO DIRECT SAVANNAH PAGEANT

City Will Be Asked To Underwrite Ceremony Commemorating Birth.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 28.—(P)—Dr. Linwood Taft, of the faculty of Drexel University, Philadelphia, was unanimously elected today by the Georgia bicentennial commission as director of the historic pageant of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Georgia at Savannah, and Judge Gordon Saussey, chairman of the commission was authorized to close arrangements with Dr. Taft immediately.

This action was taken after Dr. Taft had presented his general plan for an appropriate celebration, its scope and duration, probable cost and methods of financing it. He recommended the Georgia State Fair grounds here as the most suitable place.

Dr. Taft said a creditable pageant of the founding of the colony could be presented at a cost of $5,000 and that a very fine production could be given at a cost of $7,500. All service in connection with a general production itself is to be on a purely voluntary basis, with local leaders to organize the groups for their episodes.

Judge Saussey will present the plan to the city council Wednesday night and will ask the city to underwrite the project to the extent of $7,500. It was pointed out at the meeting today that the background of trees around the race track and fair grounds will make a beautiful setting for the pageant. Dr. Taft suggested that there should be at least two or three performances.

It was decided to leave to a central committee, to be appointed by Judge Saussey, the various details, including the site of the pageant, the length of time it should last and its other features besides the historical pageant.

Dr. Taft agreed with opinions expressed that the production should cover more than the settlement of Georgia and thought it might be well to embrace other outstanding events in Georgia history showing the growth of the state from its early days.

The participation of the principal cities and of many communities of Georgia will be invited. It is Dr. Taft's idea that the historical pageant, which will belong to the history of the whole state and not of Savannah alone, should be produced in several cities, with the same actors and costumes, the idea appealed very strongly to the commissioners. While the first settlement of Georgia was at Savannah, it is felt that the celebration should have state-wide interest.

It is not proposed to limit the celebration to the historical production. The celebration will also be a cooperation of various organizations in carrying out a large plan which may extend over several weeks or months and of which the historical pageant will be one feature. Dr. Taft spoke of the desirability of having all patriotic societies, such as the Colonial Dames, the D. A. R., the U. D. C. and others, participate in the general program. Dr. Taft was formerly principal of the Savannah high school.

Overall Club Aids Church Attendance

When the poorer members of the Trion Methodist church remained away from services because their clothes were not considered proper, the pastor, the Rev. Fred H. Ray, decided to organize an "Overall Club" and the men all came to church in overalls, those who had failed to attend recently because of poor clothing rejoicing the congregation. The women of the church all now attend in cotton dresses. The club not only has increased the church attendance but also has increased the consumption of cotton, the south's major product. A group of the members of the club, photographed after the Sunday morning service, is shown above. The pastor is the stout man in the center.

Funeral services for Mrs. Inez Wilkins Jones, widow of William Everett Jones, one of Georgia's most prominent women, who died here Sunday morning, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her residence.

Mrs. Jones was founder and first president of the Waynesboro Women's Club, chairman emeritus of Burke county chapter of the Red Cross, trustee of the Tullahub Industrial school, president of Ladies' Memorial Association, Burke county, and served as a director and as chairman in four Liberty Loan drives, and in a similar capacity for Council of Defense and United War Fund as well as the Red Cross.

Mrs. Jones was born in Brothersville, Ga., August 4, 1862, the daughter of Moselle Carson and William Carson. She died with her parents at Waynesboro at the age of nine and spent the rest of her life here.

She was married to W. E. Jones on September 14, 1880. She is survived by five children, Sidney Carswell Jones, Mrs. Anna Jones, Mrs. Phillip Jones, Mrs. Inez Wilkins Wright, all of Waynesboro, and Mrs. George D. Greely, of Glenridge, N. Seudler, of Athens, and a brother, W. A. Wilkins.

Judge H.W. Hopkins Soon To Celebrate 82d Anniversary

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 28.—

Judge H. W. Hopkins, of Thomasville, will celebrate his 82d birthday next Sunday, January 3. Despite his ripe age Judge Hopkins is one of the most ardent and active sportsmen of the southwest Georgia-northwest Florida region. He follows the dogs in the fox chase, to hunt deer, and frequently comes before the break of dawn to a hammock to stalk the wild turkey.

Recently he acquired a pack of ten beagle hounds, with which he expects to create a great commotion in rabbit circles hereabouts. He personally directs their activities and says that all is not fun and games, but there are serious sides to hunting.

He had retired to his room for sleep at the usual hour during the morning, and it was when a son, Lorain Hartley, went into the room for a book that the man was found fatally shot in the temple, newspaper reports say. The bullet had been fired probably two hours before it was discovered.

A .38-caliber pistol, with one shell exploded, was found on the bed near the man's head. His hands were by his side. The pistol was the weapon used by Mr. Hartley when on duty as watchman.

Hog-Killing Weather Is Needed in Thomas

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 28.—

Thomas county farmers are anxious to see some weather that will bring in a good crop of hogs.

Up to this date there has been no weather said enough for that purpose, only four frosts having occurred—in November and one in December—and not a single morning when the mercury was down to the freezing point.

The weather is blamed for the lack of hogs in pens and running in fields in the county this fall and winter season. Swine raisers have for the most part refrained from putting the larger part of their stock into co-operative pens, preferring to kill the hogs themselves and sell the meat, rather than dispose of them alive at the low prices for live hogs that have been, and still are, prevailing.

VETERANS WILL MEET IN MACON NEXT YEAR

The date will be set by Mr. Womack and William Harden, commander of the Georgia division, within several months. Local committees have not been appointed yet, but the pre-reunion will last two days, and headquarters will be in the million-dollar Macon auditorium, Mr. Womack said.

A parade, speaking and memorial programs will feature the reunion.

Fish in U. S. Hatchery Know Feeding Time

VALDOSTA, Ga., Dec. 28.—Government fish at the Valdosta hatchery, Grassy lake, south of Valdosta, are fed regularly and they know when feeding time comes, according to John Blotz, superintendent.

Green shrimp are fed to the fish twice each week, and the fish swarm to the banks of the pools and follow the feed boats as they are rowed over the larger lake.

Approximately 300 pounds of shrimp are shipped here each week to be fed to the hatchery fish.

Shake - Up, Designed To Name Chief, Likely To Bring Fight.

General shake-up of council's police committee, which is to be organized by Mayor James L. Key makes his announcements on the night of January 4, may precipitate a councilmanic battle and may result in wresting from that committee the authority to select James L. Beavers' successor, it was indicated Monday.

City hall rumors are to the effect that Key plans to replace at least three members of the present committee, and there have been suggestions from several sources that, if a committee is named to select any one man to the post, it will be of his successor, Beavers, who quits January 4 after 43 years of service, a move will be initiated to take from the committee the right to elect a chief of police.

Such action is not without precedent, inasmuch as the 1931 council has already taken steps to select a superintendent of buildings from the buildings and grounds committee. This action was taken over the vehement protest of the committee, and after the committee had selected a superintendent.

Given Monday was that Key will replace the entire committee, and will place Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, as chairman, with Alderman Guy Colman and Councilman G. Dan Bridges, Homer C. Foster and Joseph E. Herman as his members.

Key is known to favor selection of Detective Lieutenant D. Sturdivant to succeed Beavers, but there are many members of council who hold that Sturdivant is not qualified, temperamentally or by ability, for the post. He has not muster a single support on the 93-man committee, and that is assigned as the reason for the contemplated shake-up of this year's committee.

SWIRLING SNOW, RAIN CRIPPLE COAST AREAS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—(UPI) One of the heaviest rain and snow storms in years left some parts of California flooded and snow-bound today, while train and airplane services over the Sierras came to a standstill. The storm was felt to some degree over nearly all the Pacific slope.

An aerial survey of the Pajaro river valley showed 5,000 acres of agricultural land inundated. The town of Pajaro was flooded to a depth ranging from six to three feet. At Norden, Cal., a point on the Sierra summit, 46 inches of snow fell yesterday night, bringing the height of the white blanket there to 181 inches.

Watsonville, Cal., was flooded.

There was about a foot of water in most of the streets. Some 20 residential blocks in Pajaro were inundated. At San Luis Obispo, Calif., 4 to 12 inches of rain fell yesterday and last night, flooding lowlands. Paso Robles also was partly flooded.

Avalanches of snow, rock and dirt at Eder, 10 miles from Truckee, Calif., which tore out several hundred feet of Southern Pacific railroad tracks and snow sheds, stopping trains on both sides of the snow-covered Sierras.

Holiday travelers and others of the stalled trains were given free meals while crews were clearing the tracks. Southern Pacific officials said the tracks would be clear to night or tomorrow.

Transportation and communication were crippled in southern Oregon, but the weather was clearing and service was expected to return to normal tonight.

Snowfall was above normal in the highlands of the Pacific slope for the first time in two years.

EDUCATOR FLAYS FORD JOB POLICIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(UPI)—An attack upon the employment policies of Henry Ford was made before the American Education Association today by a fellow Detroiter.

S. M. Levin, of the College of the City of Detroit, said the automobile manufacturer "not only utterly failed to co-operate with Detroit charities, but has shown open hostility to the welfare administration."

Levin said Ford has termed charity depending, but that "thousands of his employees are denizens of soup kitchens."

To less efficient workers who are forced out and hired back at lower rates, Levin charged Ford "shows no mercy."

Enroll For Winter Term At Southern Business College And Get A Typewriter Free

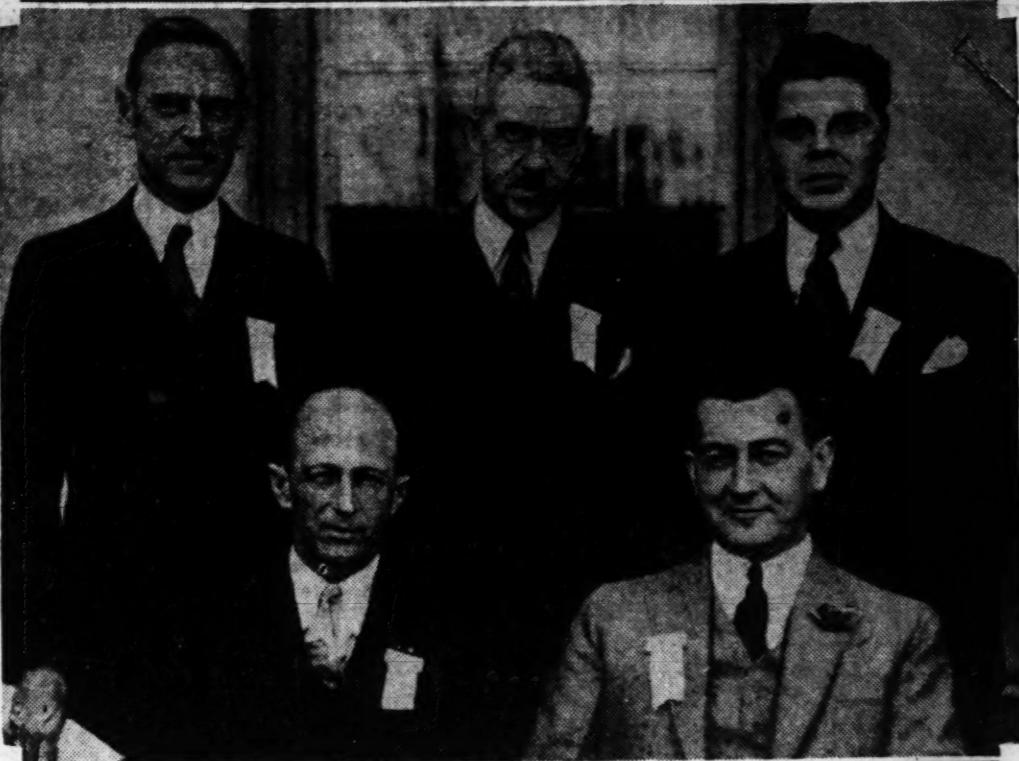

Preparing Now For Those Good Times Which Are Surely Coming.

Enroll now for the winter term and you'll be one of the fifty lucky young people who will own typewriting machines without having paid a single dollar more than the price of their business.

At the regular price of the scholarship, a beautiful and useful Remington typewriter is being included with the Business Course at the Southern Business University, 193 Peachtree Street, but those who desire to avail themselves of this remarkable offer are advised to do so at once, as the limited number of scholarships, including machines, are already being purchased and the balance will perhaps be taken before or during the week beginning January 4, on account of the large number now enrolling for the winter term.

The Southern's new location, new equipment, and improved courses, are attracting wide attention. Be pro-

Winner Is Overwhelmed.

Miss Williams, when informed that Dame Fortune had bestowed the first prize upon her, was overwhelmed and remained inarticulate while the old P. E. adjusted his glasses and read the formal announcement. Then she flung her arms about her sister, with whom she makes her home, and gave that attractive young lady a crushing hug. Regaining some of her composure she turned to the P. E. and, in a voice that trembled with emotion, said "I was never so happy or more surprised. This is the first prize I've ever won in my life. I simply can't find words to do them thrilled and appreciative I am!"

Miss Williams is 22 years old and the possessor of both an active mind and an ingratiating personality. She was born in Mobile, Ala., but removed to Atlanta a year ago. At 18 years of age she attended grade school in Atlanta and is employed by the Fox Film Corporation. When asked how she planned to spend the $1,000 she hesitated a moment, then replied: ". . . you see, it's this: I'm engaged. We postponed our wedding because . . . well, conditions weren't very bright . . . but now, Oh, everything is so different."

Mrs. Hill Enthusiastic.

Mrs. Hill, winner of the second prize of $500, was an enthusiastic contestant from the beginning. She is a native of Macon, Ga., but has been making her home in Clarkesville.

"The proverb contest," said Mrs. Hill, "was the most pleasurable of pastimes. It was educational and lessened the time available for reading."

We're here taking the Constitution as far back as I can remember. It has always had many delightful features, but none so entertaining and instructive as this one." A photograph of Mrs. Hill, who is 75 years old, was not available for publication.

Photographs and statements from S. A. Freeman, editor of the third prize, and Mrs. J. B. Gilbert, winner of the fifth prize, both of Greenville, S. C., could not be obtained in time to be included in this issue.

Dr. Nicolassen, winner of the fourth prize, is dean of the School of Ancient Languages of Oglethorpe University and was not available for publication. Dr. Nicolassen was out of town when the P. E. called, but Mrs. Nicolassen said that he had been deeply impressed by the educational value of the contest.

Record Number of Entries.

The unprecedented popularity of the proverb contest resulted in a record number of entries. Before the final deadline had been reached on Monday, December 7, it was planned to announce the names of the winners before Christmas, but so many sets of pictures and answers were submitted that it became necessary to postpone the announcement until today.

Each of the 80 pictures making up the proverb series were drawn to illustrate specific proverbs. After the final deadline had been reached on Monday, December 7, it was planned to announce the names of the winners before Christmas, but so many sets of pictures and answers were submitted that it became necessary to postpone the announcement until today.

The unprecedeted popularity of the proverb contest resulted in a record number of entries. Before the final deadline had been reached on Monday, December 7, it was planned to announce the names of the winners before Christmas, but so many sets of pictures and answers were submitted that it became necessary to postpone the announcement until today.

All sets resubmitted by contestants who, because of insufficient postage, had their envelopes or packages returned, were accepted and counted, even though they were received after the deadline, Monday, December 7.

No Sets Returned.

A number of contestants asked that their sets be returned after the announcement of the winners, so that they could preserve them for future enjoyment. The Constitution would gladly return sets if it were possible. Under the rules of the contest, it was pointed out that sets would not be paid back. Accordingly, sets were not filed alphabetically when received, and hence could not be returned without a vast amount of detail. In order to accommodate readers who want to keep the proverb pictures, facsimiles will continue to be printed daily in the classified advertising section.

Much of the popularity of the proverb contest was due to its freedom from red tape and bothersome conditions. The correct answers are what counted. Contestants were not asked to solicit subscriptions in order to qualify for any of the prizes, nor was there any provision to describe to the Constitution. Shortly after the contest began, the Constitution made available the book, "Proverbs of All Ages," at 50 cents a copy, but readers were not obliged to buy this publication. Contestants "paid" $6. All sets were completed without cost to the Carnegie public library and all of its branches, as well as to numerous

Was the Proverb Contest Popular? Take a Look at These Heaped-up Mail Bags!

The Constitution's proverb contest, which began last September, swept to the heights of popularity. Veteran newspapermen and impartial observers describe it as the most widely-followed feature of its kind ever presented by a southern newspaper. Seventy-seven mail bags, shown in the upper photograph, were required to hold the finished solutions, after the final deadline had been reached. No. 45. "Evil to him who evil thinks." This scene shows a man thinking of the devil, age-old personification of evil.

No. 53. "Dexterity comes by experience." The picture showed a man balancing an egg or an oval object on his nose. This feat required dexterity, the fruit of experience. Several players advanced, "He tries to support an egg on his nose" as the solution. The balanced object was not wobbling. RECALL WORKERS RENEW CAMPAIGN

Many Names To Petition
Reported in 3d; Key's
Friends Rally.

Petitions for the recall of Mayor James L. Key being circulated by John A. Mangat and the Atlanta Federation of Trades are being signed rapidly, Edwin Scott, of 608 Cameron street, in the third ward, announced Monday afternoon.

The labor group petitions were printed Monday and actual solicitation of signatures got under way during the afternoon, said Scott, who stated that 30 men and women volunteers workers were busy in the third ward.

Despite the fact that Councilman Claude L. Barnwell, of the sixth ward, is ill and may not be able to attend the meeting of council Monday, the effort to initiate a recall of the mayor is continuing, in view of recall petitions by Mangat and the Federation of Trades, will be offered to council and is sure of passage, it was indicated Monday.

Mangat Workers Rally.

Mangat workers are rallying to the renewed spurt for signatures, Scott said, who added that all Mangat signatures will be used in the joint movement against the mayor. The signatures are being taken at the city hall, where an ordinance requires that initiative petitions be signed before the clerk or a deputy. The ordinance does not require signatures to recall petitions to stand their individuality.

Friends of Mayor Key already have rallied to his assistance, and it was reported Monday that as many as half of the members of council already have pledged their support to the Barnwell ordinance, which would require that those signing the petition do so in the city clerk's office.

Barnwell has been suffering lately from the after effects of an emergency operation for appendicitis, and may be forced to return to the hospital for a rest, but he has announced he will ask council to take steps to prevent Barnwell from blocking the mayor and other city officials by disgruntled groups through the threat of a recall.

Mayor at Home.

The mayor himself was confined to his home Monday on orders of Dr. Frank Eskridge, his personal physician. He is suffering from high blood pressure and must remain quiet for the next few days.

Almon G. Everett Millican, mayor pro tem, was acting as mayor Monday and will continue to do so until the mayor's return.

A total of 4,905 names on the petition for the recall election is necessary before a recall election can be held. Mangat's petition had nearly 4,000 already signed. The federal election as just recently joined the Mangat ouster move, citing among other things the mayor's failure to approve an extra appropriation of $4,310 to supplement wage scales in erection of an administration building in Unidad field.

Councilman Charles Parks Rusk, of the thirteenth ward, has offered to wager that the recall petition will be filed at the January 4 session of the council, when he takes his seat, and it is contemplated that if the petition is to be filed at that time, a resolution will be passed to join Mangat's group.

Unless the petition is filed at that time, and if council passes the Barnwell ordinance, the petition would be nullified on signature of the ordinance by the mayor, and those sponsoring it would be forced to have signs visit the clerk's office to sign it.

Text of Petition.

Scott, who formerly was an investigator for Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, gave out the text of the latest Mangat-Labor petitions as follows:

"To the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta:

"The undersigned, a registered voter of the city of Atlanta, as disclosed by the registration sheet of the last preceding general election, do hereby present our petition to call an election within 30 days from the date of filing of this petition in the office of the clerk of council, for the purpose of the recall or non-recall of the Hon. James L. Key, present mayor of the city of Atlanta, for the reason that having the office declared vacant in accordance with the provisions of the charter of the city of Atlanta set forth in Section 418, code of the city of Atlanta, 1924."

Meadow's appointment is effective January 1, when the attorney-general's office becomes the department of law and the place of record. The addition of one assistant assigned to the law department proper will require one additional stenographer, the attorney-general said Monday.

Meadow is a graduate of the University of Georgia and has been engaged for several years in general practice of law. He is a son of the late D. W. Meadow, who was judge of the Athens circuit.

Authorization of six assistants was given by the general assembly in order that the state would not be required to expend money for extra legal services. The assistants assigned to the state public service departments supplant special attorneys who have heretofore been employed directly by these agencies.

5 STORES ROBBED AND $3,200 TAKEN

Market, Drug Store, Delicatessen, Pressing Club Entered by Thieves.

Bandits and safe robbers carried out a series of robberies Monday morning, netting one of the richest "hauls" in several months when five stores were invaded and robbed of a total of approximately $3,200.

The most daring of the robberies occurred shortly after the J. A. Davis market, 509 Broad street, when approximately $2,000 was obtained by two white gunmen who escaped as hundreds of passersby looked on. According to reports made to detectives by Davis and an employee, H. A. Watts, two white men entered the market shortly after 8 o'clock and took the property of the store to turn over between $1,700 and $2,000 in currency, and escaped after running around the corner of Broad into Mitchell street.

Three stores in the 300 block of Court Boulevard, N. E., were entered Sunday night, or early Monday morning, and about $1,000 was estimated at $1,000. One drugstore, a delicatessen and a pressing club were invaded. They were Hulse's pharmacy, 333 Boulevard; George's delicatessen, 379 Boulevard, and a barber shop and pressing club at 357 Boulevard. Safes in two of the establishments were broken into and the contents taken. Six-year-old Willard Roper, who was hit by an automobile while his parents looked on, was believed to be in a dying condition Monday night. The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Roper, was struck down on Roswell road, near his home by an automobile and was taken to Grady hospital. Samples was released on his own recognizance before the clerk or a deputy. The ordinance does not require signatures to recall petitions to stand their individuality.

Season of Prayer Is Urged To Relieve Business Distress

Action of Druid Hills Deacons Follows Sermon by Newton; Menace of Another War Seen.

Seeing in the present world condition a menace of another war of immense proportions, the board of deacons of Druid Hills Baptist church Monday made public resolutions unanimously adopted recommending a worldwide season of prayer "for deliverance from the distress and dangers that confront the general welfare."

After the decision followed a powerful sermon delivered at the forenoon services Sunday by Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the church, in which the danger of another world war, more terrible than recent conflicts, Europe and civilian life ended. Dr. Newton, in his sermon, asserted that the only-potent remedy for the present situation is a return "to the will of God in the lives of the individuals and in the social relations of the human family."

God Apparently Disregarded.

But in the sermon on the fourth and seventh commandments of the Book of Samuel, Dr. Newton pointed out the wilful disobedience of the children of Israel and the futile efforts which they put forth to remedy the situation in which they found themselves, until at last they needed the words of the prophet God to tell them what to do and when to do it.

"Man," said Dr. Newton, "is free to do as he chooses, but if he chooses to violate the principles of righteousness he must accept the inevitable consequences." God's will, he wrote, together with him, but he refuses to take the wrong road. Our situation today, national and international, seems to present a picture of confusion and defeat, explainable only on the ground that mankind has turned away from the Golden Rule and has undertaken to run the universe without regard to God."

"I believe we need an old-fashioned prayer meeting more than we do any other one thing right now. I think it will bring business and government and religion together."

Resolution Adopted.

So impressive was Dr. Newton's sermon that the board of deacons gave it especial consideration and, on motion of Walter G. Cooper, a member, adopted the following resolution:

In view of the great distress throughout the world, with millions on the verge of starvation while the earth brings forth food for all and industry supplies every human need, while great nations trembling on the verge of bankruptcy, revolution, and war, by fear and suspicion of their neighbors, are spending on armaments enough to relieve the suffering among them and are holding out of productive industry under arms, 6,000,000 of their strongest young men, and 200,000,000 in reserves, while the rest stagger under the crushing burdens of taxation which support the armaments;

"And while the statesmen of the world labor on measures to restore prosperity, relieve distress and avert war, the people of the world are in far worse trouble than the last; they are baffled by the great problems they are called upon to solve, and in the face of difficulties and dangers, the worst that the world ever saw, they are unable to find a way to meet this great emergency, and it is clear that the world has need of more than human wisdom to overcome the difficulties confronting it."

"Therefore, be it resolved by the pastor and members of the Druid Hills Baptist church that we ask our brethren of all Christian churches and all who worship God to meet with us at a time to be fixed after conference with them, to frame and send out a call to worldwide prayer to the Maker and Ruler of the world to give us, and our leaders in church and state, and to deliver us from the evils that threaten the world."

Subcommittee Named.

Following the adoption of the resolution a subcommittee was appointed, consisting of Walter G. Cooper, W. Ches Smith, Z. A. Snipes, Parks Warlock and S. J. Sheffield, with Dr. Newton as chairman, to work out the details of the proposed meeting for prayer after conferences with church and civic leaders invited to participate in the formation of the final program.

It is expected that a meeting will be held in a day or two to which prominent clergymen and civic leaders, representing every phase of Atlanta's life, will be invited. The date for the public meeting will be announced following this meeting.

WOMAN IN ROWBOAT PASSES BRICKEYS, MO.

BRICKEYS, Mo., Dec. 28.—(P)—Miss Randi Lepohl, rowing her 20-foot boat which had brought her down the Mississippi River from St. Paul and in which she hopes to reach New Orleans, passed here at 4:45 p. m. today.

Local residents who watched her continue down the river saw her pull toward the bank about a mile south of here and believed she was coming to shore to camp for the night, as is her custom.

Since leaving St. Louis yesterday the Superior, Wis., boatwoman, has traveled 55 miles. During the day she made a brief stop at Herkulanum, Mo. She said at that time she was having no trouble in navigating her boat.

RICHARD DIX PLEADS 'TAX DODGING' GUILT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—(P)—The smile of Richard Dix grew a bit forced as the film star faced a federal judge who found him guilty today in income tax evasion. He was fined $500. In addition, the case has cost him nearly $30,000 in back taxes.

"I'm guilty," Dix said with a trace of shyness as Judge Paul J. McCormick, noted jurist and a member of the Pickwickian commission, asked for his sentence.

"I left my taxes up to one of these experts," the actor added. "And here I am. It's the first time I've ever been in trouble. In fact, I never was in court before in my life."

Sam Hamer, an agent of the income tax department, told the court Dix had "operated in every way" in strengthening out his accounts with the government.

The government charged the actor had earned $241,827 in 1927 and paid but $28,835 on a tax which should have been $43,317. The following year he earned $306,075 and of a tax of $28,835 on a tax which should have been $43,317.

There also was a missing statement about his tax for 1926 and the government claimed he owed in all $58,502 in back taxes and $29,251 in penalties, all of which has been paid.

HIGHTOWER TRIAL ORDERED BY JUDGE

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., Dec. 28.—(P)—Overruling motions to remand the case to Harlan county or to grant continuance, Circuit Judge Henry F. Williams ordered the trial of William H. Hightower, president of Harlan county coal miners' union, to proceed as scheduled.

Hightower is one of a group of Harlan county men charged with murder, conspiracy and aiding and abetting in connection with the clash in May 5 near Evansville, Ky., in which four men were slain. W. B. Jones, secretary of the union, recently was sentenced to life imprisonment on a similar charge. All the cases were transferred to Wheeling, W. Va., for changes of venue from Harlan county.

"I'd like to send the cases back," Judge Prewitt said, "but some one has got to try them and it might as well be me."

GARDNER APPROVES STATUE OF AYCOCK

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(P)—Governor O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, and two other distinguished citizens of that state visited a Greenwich Village studio today and gave approval to a statue that is destined for National Statuary Hall.

The statue, a sculptured likeness of Charles B. Aycock, North Carolina's "education governor," who occupied the state house from 1900 to 1905. "It is excellent," said Governor Gardner, "excellent. It is a very fine likeness indeed."

With him were Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in Woodrow Wilson's administration, and Dr. J. Y. Joyner both of Raleigh. They also approved the model.

PERRY APARTMENTS ARE RAZED BY FIRE

PERKINS, Ga., Dec. 28.—(P)—The Colonial apartments, one of the oldest residential buildings in this section of the state, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin before dawn this morning.

Rev. W. K. Dennis, a superannuated Methodist minister, and one of the owners of the apartments, was alone in the building when he discovered the fire. The roof was ablaze and the house could not be saved.

N. G. Edwards is joint owner with Rev. Mr. Dennis. The house was located on the Fort Valley road, with in the city limits of Perkins.

The house was of two stories. The loss, estimated at $30,000, was largely covered by insurance, it was said.

NEPTUNE ASSOCIATION RE-ELECTS E.F. MITCHELL

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 28.—(P)—The Railway Labor Executives Association, representing 1,250,000 workers, tomorrow will consider a date for meeting a railroad presidents' committee in Chicago to discuss the union's plan to alleviate unemployment and the railroads' program for a wage increase.

A cartoon novelty, a comedy entitled "Three Wise Clucks," and the babbling news reporter with his news complete the program. Which is good value for anybody's money even in these times of stringency in the pocketbook.

FREIGHT HIKE PETITION HEARD BY COMMISSION

Application Affecting Intra- state Rates Taken Under Advise After Hearing.

Application of railroads for an increase in intrastate rates ranging from 1 to 15 per cent was taken under advisement Monday after a hearing before the General Rate Commission.

The application is a sequel to a recent order of the interstate commerce commission authorizing an increase in interstate rates.

Opposition to the increase was voiced by Carl R. Cunningham, traffic manager of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and J. T. McElroy, F. D. Portier, representing fertilizer interests. S. Linthicum, representing stone and ore shippers, and Harry T. Moore, of the Atlanta freight bureau, attended the hearing.

The case for the railroads was presented by J. C. Naughton, of Washington, a representative of the Southern; Charles Clark, Washington attorney; J. H. Tilford, representing trunk lines, and J. A. Streeter, traffic manager of the Southern Short Line Association.

FIRST SPORTS EACH DAY

Georgia Tech Will Play First Basketball Game Saturday Night

HEAVY RAIN HAMPERS WORK OF GREEN WAVE

JACKETS PLAY OPENING GAME ON SATURDAY

Slate Starts at Benning. Kentucky To Inaugurate Home Card.

By Jimmy Jones.

The first appearance of Coach Roy McGehee's New York edition of Georgia Tech basketball team will be made Saturday night at Fort Benning.

The pleasant young man who directs the indoor Tornadoes announced last night that he would call his athletes back to play Wednesday after a brief Christmas vacation, so that Saturday night he would test out his machine against the Soldier quintet.

Coach Mundoff will carry 12 players to Benning for the game, which will be in the nature of a preliminary to the opening of Tech's college season with University of Florida at Gainesville January 9.

All the local boys who are trying for places on the Tech team will report at the Athletic Club tomorrow together with five out-of-town players for resumption of practice.

HOME SCHEDULE.

The Jackets will open their home schedule at the Atlanta auditorium the night of Jan. 12, with the Kentucky Wildcats, and on Jan. 16, Joe Cody will bring his Vandy Commodores here for a setto.

A game with Mercer in Macon will be sandwiched in the week beginning January 17, and then University of Georgia comes here the night of Jan. 20.

On February 3, the Jackets are billed for a game with University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa. They drop back to Athens February 6 for a return engagement with the Bulldogs.

VOLUNTEER TENTATIVE.

Tentative, the Jackets booked here for a game January 22 and again on February 30. There also will be a road trip through Tennessee and Kentucky the latter part of February in which Vandy, Tennessee and Kentucky will be met return games.

There are some dates that have not been settled on, but these are the important games.

Alabama will be played in only one game this year and Vanderbilt comes to Atlanta for a lone battle. The Commodores had intended going on to Athens for a game with Georgia but this fell through.

MORE GAMES SEEN.

A few more games with teams in their immediate vicinity may be added by the Jackets to get them in shape for the tournament.

Tech will play all their local games at the Auditorium although the Athletic Club will be used for practices.

With football gone over the well-known hill after the Tech-California game of Saturday, those who follow the swift movements of the basketball propelled by thinly-clad young men will be interested in the type of team Coach Mundoff has.

SPEED AND ACCURACY.

"We'll be something like the football team—not a great deal of height and brawn—but we'll have speed and some pretty good shots," says Mundoff.

Lack of height may handicap the Jackets, but they are determined to work hard to inject speed and precision into his passing. His team is in good condition, the majority of the players having been out for several weeks.

Jimmy Slocum and Roy MacArthur rejoin the squad Wednesday. They managed to get in a little early work while the team was in Florida, it won't take them long to get going.

Mundoff plans to start his second team against Benning Saturday night.

"We'll have Gooding, Bill Perkins and Slocum in there as good shots and if we strike teams about our strength we ought to go pretty good," Mundoff stated.

Saturday night's game will give him a line on his material before continuing on to Florida. To date new players who have been showing up well include Pool, Gatlin, Korf, Davis, Van Houten, Parris and Bothwell.

League President Denies Meet Rumor

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(UP)—William Harridge, president of the American league, said he had not been informed of any conference here tomorrow of club owners. Commissioner Landis was not in the city.

Tuskegee To Meet Morehouse in 1932

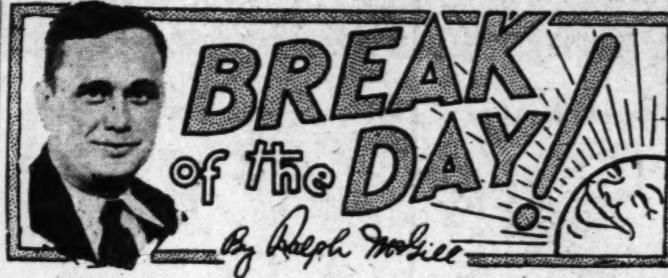

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Dec. 28.—The Tuskegee Institute football team will play Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., on Nov. 20, 1932. This date was agreed upon at the annual meeting of the Southern Conference which was held at Talladega College, Talladega, Ala., December 18 and 19.

Coach Abbott said he was negotiating with other conference institutions with reference to games for next year.

KEARNS BALKS ON MIAMI SITE FOR TITLE FIGHT

Walker's "Boss" Favors Chicago or Los Angeles for Proposed Bout.

By George Kirksey,
United Press Staff Writer.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(UP)—The world's heavyweight championship bout between Max Schmeling, of Germany, and Mickey Walker, of New Jersey, will not be held in Miami, Fla., in February, says Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, can reveal.

Kearns told the United Press today the Schmeling-Walker bout should be held in Chicago or Los Angeles and that Madison Square Garden Corporation would have to agree to two conditions before he permitted the challenge to meet the German champion in Miami.

"I don't consider Miami the place for the fight because it won't draw any money there," said Kearns. "If they think Walker is going to Florida and fight for anything they want to give them they're crazy. Before I'll agree to a Walker-Schmeling bout at Miami the Garden must do two things."

TWO CONDITIONS.

"—Guarantee the bout will take place and will be for the world's heavyweight title."

"—Give Walker what I consider a proper guarantee and percentage."

"The reason I am so anxious the Garden guarantees the fight will be for the world title is that Florida has a law against championship boxing matches and I won't permit Walker to meet Schmeling unless the title is at stake."

"The match will draw $400,000 indoors in Chicago and as much in Los Angeles, and I am not going to be bullied into a non-title bout which won't draw any money in Florida."

Kearns conferred today with General John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association, and was assured the N. B. A. will stand behind Walker as the leading contender.

Inasmuch as title bouts are not permitted in Florida, General Clinnin said he would not recognize a contract between Schmeling and Walker to meet in Miami as a legitimate championship bout and that the N. B. A. in such event would declare Schmeling's title vacant.

MAXIE'S TIME LIMITED.

Schmeling has until Jan. 17 to sign to defend his title under the N. B. A. rule that all champions must defend their championships every six months. Unless Schmeling posts a forfeit as evidence of his good faith or signs a contract by January 4, the date of expiration falling on Sunday, he will be declared vacated and the N. B. A. will withdraw its recognition of the German titleholder.

The New York commission never has recognized Schmeling as champion.

There is every indication Chicago will get the Schmeling-Walker match, and it will be held in the Chicago stadium for the benefit of the governor's unemployment fund in March. In the recent negotiations between Nate Lewis, Chicago stadium matchmaker, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, the only drawback was the fact that the 15-round distance preferred by the German was not allowed in Illinois.

The Illinois legislature will reconvene January 5, and the chances are considered good for the 15-round bill, which has been up for second round in the house, to be passed. George Getz, Chicago sportsman and member of the Illinois state athletic commission who has used his influence to further the bill, is confident that it will be passed.

The Chicago stadium offer to Schmeling was a guarantee of $200,000, with a percentage privilege. Within a few days after the offer was made, representations had been guaranteed for 4,000 of the 12,000 available top-prize seats.

Kearns, who hasn't been considered by Jacobs in the recent negotiations, may go to New York tomorrow to await the arrival of Schmeling from Germany January 4 and attempt to block further plans for taking the match any place until the 15-round bill comes up for a vote in the Illinois legislature.

And now it is the Trojan eleven. Tulane, by scoring a victory, would supply no more of an upset than was the Army victory over Notre Dame or Purdue's defeat of Northwestern.

Georgia, after beating Yale and N. Y. U., was a national leader. Georgia finished the season with an excellent rating but defeat overtook the Bulldogs in two games.

Notre Dame went rolling along like an unbeatable power. And then came Southern California and the Army with victories over Notre Dame. Northwestern lost to Purdue. Tennessee was tied by Kentucky.

And now it is the Trojan eleven. Tulane, by scoring a victory, would supply no more of an upset than was the Army victory over Notre Dame or Purdue's defeat of Northwestern.

One rather expects a close, hard-fought game with quite possibly a Tulane victory. The way of the "unbeatables" in 1931 has been most hard.

ARE YOU LAUGHING?

It was necessary Monday to obtain pumps to get the water off the Rose Bowl field at Pasadena, Cal., where Tulane meets Southern California next Friday.

Both teams were driven indoors. The weather remained cold and cloudy. So said the report.

Then it hasn't changed a bit since Georgia was out there.

On Friday they will hang some roses about the big bowl and play the game. Nothing looks so forlorn and so disgusted as a California orange tree or rose bush in a cold rain.

And now if Tulane will only come through with a victory it may snow in Los Angeles.

JIM LONDOS' CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

Jim Londos' Christmas present sent to friends this year was a handsome clothes brush. On the back is worked a picture of the champion himself. And below it is the phrase, "Brush up on wrestling."

Londos engaged in 106 matches during 1931 and drew more than $250,000 at the gate. It was the greatest year wrestling ever had in what was the leanest sports year.

And wrestling hurt boxing. With championship wrestling matches out at $2, $3 and $5 the fans began to wonder why boxing couldn't do the same.

Smear Wins Purse At New Orleans

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's Smear, consistent performer for four years, accepted the June purse which topped the card at Jefferson Park, New Orleans, today.

The three-year-old gelding son of Mad Hatter and Paintbrush, rated off the mark most of the way, came with a rush through the stretch just past Frank Seremba's Nyack at the finish.

Smear took the place from the super stable's Hyman. The winner, paying $3 for $2, ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13 and won by two lengths from M. S. Inglesby's Jaz Age third.

The 90-pound apprentice rider, H. Miller, who had the mount on the winner, scored a triple during the day. He also won with Night Edition in the third and Tantalizing in the seventh.

The Tamalpais purse, feature of Havana's special Monday program, was won by D. Martin.

T. Fisher's Hasty Polly, with C. H. Sprague's Step Sis a close second and P. Storni's Polycron third. Hasty Polly ran the 6 furlongs in 1:11 and paid 6 to 1.

Austie Downs Executed Smartest Play of Year, Says Stevens

GEORGIA STAR'S
QUICK THINKING
STOPPED SCORE

Yale Coach Lauds Three Players for Clever Gridiron Work.

Austie Downs, of Georgia, pulled the smartest defensive bit of thinking of the year, according to Mal Stevens, Yale head coach.

Stevens, in an article on "Grid This," lists Downs, of Georgia, and Ross and Booth, of Yale, as the three men who showed him great thinking under difficulties in games during the past fall.

Stevens' story, appearing in the New York Evening Post, follows:

"There were several plays that came under my observation during the season that I consider as excellent examples of the sort of thinking which makes football the mental test that it is.

"A great piece of brain work, perhaps one of the highlights of the season, was that of Austin Downs of Georgia. Ross and Booth returned a kick-off against the Georgians for 70 yards with a phalanx of Yale players formed in front of him. Downs, instead of trying to fight through or break up the interference, turned his back and ran away from them in pursuit. Booth had been running, thus by our interference, it would have been called clipping and Yale would have been penalized. Instead Downs, cleverly faded, which made Albie take a cut, both feet slipping out from under him on the wet grass and a touchdown was lost for Yale as a result.

"Two incidents come to mind from Yale's game with Dartmouth. In one, Barres and Madden, end and middle down the field under a long punt by Parker. Barres, being the faster, was down ahead of Madden. However, Barres saw the ball touch a Dartmouth man and take a crazy hop, and, instead of going for the ball, he instantaneously drove it into Morton. Dartmouth's quarterback, who had allowed Madden to run and fall on the ball, unfortunately, had been bobbled into opportunity and Dartmouth recovered on about its five-yard line, else we might well have had another touchdown. As it was, Morton boot-ed out of danger nicely.

"A third, a nice piece of quick thinking in the same game, when Rotan came around to the weak side of our line to protect Albie. Booth, who was a receiver on a sharp, cut-back play, Rotan, who is very fast and shifty for his weight, had an opportunity to take one man ahead of both and assure Albie of a nice gain. However, he immediately saw that Booth had 'position' on the first man and Rotan went down and picked off the safety man, which gave Albie a nice run for touchdown.

"In the Dartmouth game Albie received a bad pass from center. Scop-ing it up, he ran a few steps to the right and booted the ball on the run for a new hit—45 yards! Albie, which went out of bounds on the six-yard line. As this was fourth down and Albie had been cornered, I called it a great piece of headwork and execution."

THEY'RE DIFFERENT.

While hockey sticks cannot be more than 33 inches over all, the blades come in different models.

The Ghosts of '31.

There are shadows down the skyline
Where the clouds blot out the sun,
There are whispers in the darkness
From the ghosts of '31.

As they haunt the endless headlines
Where the flags of hope are furled,

As they haunt the worn and weary
From a dazed and battered world.

But the world keeps rolling forward
Through the broken and the dead,
Where the countercharge is waiting
For the goal that waits ahead;

But the flag is always flying,
(If you like a sporting chance)

For the legions that are ready
For the order to advance.

Yes, the countercharge is waiting
Through the fog and mists of fear,
Through the shadows and the phantoms
As we face another year;

And no matter what may happen
As we launch or break a lance,

In the winning or the losing
It's at least a sporting chance.

Authority in Football.

The football officials were the first to meet in their annual holiday week session, and in their recommendations to the rules committee may be seen the more seasoned and mellowed trend in football matters.

GEORGIA DOWNS Y. FIVE, 39-32

Bulldogs Keep Lead
Throughout in Rough,
Fast Game.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 28.—Georgia defeated the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. five-to-32 here tonight in a game marked at times by fast and rough play.

Bill Strickland, Bulldog center, and Tommy Reed, former Georgia star, and Brock, "Y" guard and forward, respectively, were ejected from the game in the final half of the game on personal foul.

Strickland's stay was marked by hard and furious play which netted him 14 points before he left the game in the second half. He tied with Jones and Phillips, "Y" forward and former Georgia Tech star, for high point honors.

Reeder played a fast game but lacked the polish he showed last season when he guarded the Bulldog goal in tip-top form.

Georgia took a 7-to-0 lead to begin the second half, closed the margin considerably. The Bulldogs managed to hold on to an 8 to 10 point lead until the last, when a final rally by the Atlantans cut it to 7 points.

Officials for Schools.

Now that the requirements for membership in the Eastern Association of football officials have been made so strict, more care will automatically be taken in the officiating of kick-offs and possibly the moving of the ball still further back, to the 30-yard line. The kick-off tee was taken out of the game partly because of the number of piles of clay left scattered on the field.

Special interest attaches to the records of the two-year-olds and from this division must come the winners of the Kentucky Derby and the other great three-year-old stakes. Heading in file, Tom Finley, Her victories in Belmont, Futurity, and the other rich stakes which she won without much effort ranks her among the greatest fillies the American turf has produced.

THE PROMISING FILLIES.

Among the other two-year-olds which showed stake class this year and which will compete in the derby and other three-year-old stakes in 1932 are Burnet, Blaz, The One, Ontario, Lordfair, Major Proteus, Burgoy King, Mad Pursuit, Sweeping Light, Pompeius, Liberty Limited, Cathop, Big Beau, Air Pilot, and at least a hundred others, representing the best products of the breeding farms of America.

The increased demand for reservations for next year's Kentucky Derby gives assurance of a successful spring meeting at Churchill Downs.

I believe that 1932 will see a marked improvement in all lines of business, which will be reflected on the race courses where the public will find relaxation and pleasure.

TWENTY GRAND REAL CHAMPION, WINN DECLARIES

Mate Worthy Competitor; Year Shows Public Confidence in Racing.

By Col. Matt J. Winn,
President American Turf Association

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(UP)—In my opinion, the year just closed has shown conclusively that racing in this country is on the increase in every way. Competent and watchful officials have kept the sport clean and formal. All the great stake races have produced close contests and record crowds have attended each of these events.

Taking into consideration the business situation for the past two years, it is remarkable that the race courses should have made so favorable a showing. Of course, there has been a substantial reduction in the wagering at all tracks, but the attendance has been large and enthusiastic. I can speak more particularly for the Kentucky and Illinois tracks because they come within my personal knowledge.

WELCOME CHAMPION.

The public always welcomes a champion and they found in worthy one this year in Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand, which featured his career as a three-year-old by winning the Kentucky Derby. He found a worthy competitor in A. C. Bostwick's mate, which won the Preakness and the American Derby and other important stakes.

The chief complaint came from officials that had to wait while a floral frame contrivance was born in maturity onto the field, the ball balanced on its lofty pinnacle, before being rooted to the field goal post. The ridiculous artificial trees, some made of modeling clay with wire foundations, made a travesty of placement kicking.

The kick-off tee was taken out of the game partly because of the number of piles of clay left scattered on the field.

Special interest attaches to the records of the two-year-olds and from this division must come the winners of the Kentucky Derby and the other great three-year-old stakes. Heading in file, Tom Finley, Her victories in Belmont, Futurity, and the other rich stakes which she won without much effort ranks her among the greatest fillies the American turf has produced.

PROMISING FILLIES.

Among the other two-year-olds which showed stake class this year and which will compete in the derby and other three-year-old stakes in 1932 are Burnet, Blaz, The One, Ontario, Lordfair, Major Proteus, Burgoy King, Mad Pursuit, Sweeping Light, Pompeius, Liberty Limited, Cathop, Big Beau, Air Pilot, and at least a hundred others, representing the best products of the breeding farms of America.

The increased demand for reservations for next year's Kentucky Derby gives assurance of a successful spring meeting at Churchill Downs.

I believe that 1932 will see a marked improvement in all lines of business, which will be reflected on the race courses where the public will find relaxation and pleasure.

SEEK DATA.

Little and his associates sent questionnaires to more than 400 colleges and universities seeking data on the time the average player devotes to football in comparison to other sports and extracurricular activities. It is football's first official answer to the cry of overemphasis.

WHILE COACHES WARM UP.

While the coaches were warming up for tomorrow's vocal marathon, physical directors from the country's leading schools held their own meeting today. They will have another session tomorrow.

Dr. Marvin (Mal) Stevens, head coach of Yale University, was slated to succeed Chick Meeker as president of the coaches' association. It was understood his election tomorrow would be a formality.

Dan McGugin, veteran Vanderbilt mentor, was expected to succeed Stevens as vice president and W. H. Cowell, of New Hampshire, to be re-elected secretary-treasurer.

NATIONAL TOURNEY IN QUARTER-FINALS.

MADISON, Ga., Dec. 28.—With weather conditions ideal, members of the Madison Aagie football team settled down to an afternoon of hard work today in preparation for an Elks charity game Friday in Columbus, Ga., with the Allen Military Academy eleven from Bryan, Texas.

A long light punting and passing drill was performed in the afternoon's work, and a long rough scrimmage was scheduled either for Tuesday or Wednesday afternoon. The team will taper off with a long light drill Thursday afternoon before departing to Columbus.

Both teams are undefeated and have the best records of any prep teams in the southern states. The winner will become the official southern prep champions for 1931.

Allen Players

Leave for Game.

BRYAN, Texas, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Twenty-two Allen Academy football players headed by Coach "Puny" Wilson, will leave here early Tuesday morning for Columbus, Ga., where Friday they will tangle with the Madison A. & M. Tech eleven of Madison, Ga., in a charity game.

After all is said and done, this particular week, the officials are in the best position to nip all football's most serious dangers at the very start. There will be sentiment in the other meetings to give the officials greater power in punishing players who persist in breaking rules. However, having no desire to become unpopular, the whistle-tooters might decline the honor, but sooner or later, if the tempo of the game, especially in line play, is kept at the 1931 pitch, the referees will have to take a hand in disqualifying the entire bunch and general all-around lawlessness—only a few in the whole football company—who give the whole a bad name.

Both teams are undefeated and the winner will be crowned the prep school champion of the south.

PITT BASKET TEAM MAROONED BY SNOW.

BERKELEY, Calif., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The University of Pittsburgh basketball team was marooned by a snow storm tonight aboard a passenger railway train near Truckee, Calif.

Failure of the eastern team to arrive will result in cancellation of the University

Calif. game squad meeting the Oakland Athletic club, instead of Pittsburgh, with whom a game had been scheduled.

However, there should be a strict enforcement of penalties for pulling or diving into a ball carrier on the ground. It isn't necessary to dive into a man's head, neck or shoulders to stop him on the ground. The same results can be accomplished by interposing lower players directly in front of the runner who is down.

LEGION CARD.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 28.—Joe McGowan, Kansas City, and Raul Rojas, Havana, Cuba, middleweights, will meet in the 10-round feature bout of the American Legion boxing show here tomorrow night.

STANDS COLLAPSE.

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 28.—(AP)—One person was killed and 20 were injured today when a grandstand collapsed during a football game.

The affair will be held at the Flager golf course, with qualifying rounds starting Sunday, January 3, and matches play from January 6 to 9 inclusive.

Despite the name of the tourney officials pointed out, only amateurs will be entitled to play.

JOHNSON FAVORED.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(UP)—Lerry Johnson, Chicago negro, has been installed a 6-to-5 favorite over Billy Jones, Philadelphia negro, for their 10-round bout feature in the third session of matches in the National Boxing Association's light-heavyweight tournament at the Chicago stadium Wednesday night. The winner of this bout will be the favorite to capture the tournament.

OUTBOARD RACES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Walter E. Wood, national champion in Class C outboard motorboat racing, won two of three races held by the Florida Outboard Motorboat Association at Lake Maggiore South Bend, Ind., won the third race.

GRID COACHES
OUTLINE PLANS FOR MEET TODAY

No Drastic Changes in Present Rules Are Probable.

By Gayle Talbot,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Leading football coaches of the nation here for their annual clinic scheduled tomorrow, held informal talks today and tonight.

The steering committee, headed by Chick Meeker, president of the national association, adjourned the afternoon and evening outlining the program for tomorrow's session.

Taking into consideration the business situation for the past two years, it is remarkable that the race courses should have made so favorable a showing. Of course, there has been a substantial reduction in the wagering at all tracks, but the attendance has been large and enthusiastic. I can speak more particularly for the Kentucky and Illinois tracks because they come within my personal knowledge.

Non-Scouting Good.

Jackets and 'Gators Conducted Interesting Experiment With Pacific Coast Teams.

By Jimmy Jones.

Scouting—the personal kind that is done with notebook and a set of binoculars—was a couple of interesting experiments during the present football year with very little having been said about it.

During the Southern conference meeting at New Orleans recently, coaches and other interested parties, overthrew a proposal that would have abolished all forms of professional pecking at football games. But there were two conference teams that participated in games with coast elevens without a single play having been disgruntled by a special agent. And what is more, they got off with it handsomely.

Georgia Tech and California had a non-scouting agreement on for last Saturday's game in Atlanta because of the great expense that would have evolved from getting a detailed report of each other's plays.

For the same reason, Florida went to Los Angeles and played U. C. L. A. without an exchange of scouts.

Both contests, from the viewpoint of public, press and coaches, were only very interesting exhibitions but up to par in scientific skill.

Tech played a splendid game in holding California, 19 to 6.

NO IDEA.

Coach Bachman, of Florida, although his team lost, 13 to 0, thought his boys played their best game of the year.

Chances Ingram, of California, and Alexander, of Tech, likewise only had a hazy knowledge of each other's system and had come home with the grapevine route.

And the element of uncertainty about each other not only made the game more interesting but saved Tech from making a bold move that would have come from saving a man clear to the coast to shadow the Bears. As a consequence, both teams were able to get away with more spectacular stuff, and that included Tech's sensational passing game.

DONES HARM.

"I've found that intensive scouting may do a team more harm than good because it can only absorb so much of the other team's strength and the other coach is liable to put in something new at the last minute," says Coach Bachman.

The Florida coach also believes that about all a coach needs to set his defense is the principal formula and a few simple plays of the opposition.

There is such a thing as over "cramming" in football.

As a result of this intersessional rivalry with coast teams, it may be decided to drop the use of professional scouting but any other kind that calls for a scout continually trailing the enemy at great expense to the athletic treasury is quite superfluous.

The public would see a more spec-

PROGRESS IS REPORTED IN SYNTHETIC RUBBER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Progress in making synthetic rubber was reported today to the organic section of the American Chemical Society meeting at Yale University.

Two compounds, chloroprene and bromoprene, which react with themselves to form rubber-like products, were described by Dr. Wallace H. Carothers, of the du Pont de Nemours Company. He said much new and valuable information had been accumulated concerning the synthetic rubber reaction through the discovery of these products.

CRUSADERS SEE RISE IN WET SENTIMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The Crusaders today drew from the "accident of repeal and modification bills already introduced in the house of representatives" the conclusion that "the tide is swelling against prohibition."

"During the four preceding congresses, modification and repeal bills, about 70 a session and about 18 bills in each, were introduced," he said. "The crusade to fight up enforcement," the anti-prohibition organization said in a statement.

"Over 80 bills in reference to prohibition already have been introduced in the current session, and every one of these proposed bills is aimed at either repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act."

TALMADGE TO EDIT FARM PAPER PAGE

Agricultural Head To Air Views Monthly in Southern Cultivator.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Exactly 145,025 times the treasury department was wrong last year and passed $69,476,930 in tax refunds to over the errors.

That was the substance of Secretary Mellon's annual report to Congress today on taxes which the treasury agreed had been illegally collected. The $69,476,930 was repaid in 1930. The amount did not list deductions and abatements, which are deducted from taxes assessed but not yet paid.

In the 1930 fiscal year, refunds were $126,836,333, abatements $176,308,377 and credits $36,535,245.

But while the treasury was making this claim, it also added $36,788,076 to the taxpayers' outlay for the 1931 financial year.

Among those who profited by the treasury's second thought were hundreds of well known persons and firms. The Prairie Oil group—in particular—got $15,205,343 in 1930. The "Prairie" oil men are the right to disagree with him on any matter not in accord with the policies of the Cultivator."

"I accept the offer of the Southern Cultivator," Talmadge wrote its publishers, "to carry my messages to the people on condition that I write exactly what I please." The Cultivator is a weekly newspaper carrying a two-column cut of the commissioner along with the exchange of letters on the subject.

December 21, 1931.

Hon. Eugene Talmadge, Commissioner of Agriculture, State Capitol Bldg., Atlanta.

Dear Mr. Talmadge:

We note from a current news item that a decision made by the attorney-general will deprive you of the privilege of publishing editorial matter in The Market Bulletin.

With regard to the controversy between you and the commissioners of agriculture, we would like to advise you that the department of agriculture has no objection to controversial material or to constructive measures advocated by the department of agriculture, nor is there any conflict between the farmers of the state and the department's chief on farming methods and practices that are essential to a better agriculture.

The Southern Cultivator is published for the sole purpose of securing direct contact with the farmers of Georgia and the southeast, that it may carry to them the advantages to be derived from diversified farming, live stock and poultry raising, dairy cattle, soil conservation, extension better home conditions, extension of gardening and furtherance of the live-at-home program.

As you are denied the privilege of advising the farmers of the state along constructive lines in The Market Bulletin we invite you to make use of the columns of The Southern Cultivator to carry my messages to the people on condition that I write exactly what I please.

I am not expecting The Cultivator to agree with me in what I write. There may appear other matters in The Cultivator with which I may take issue.

Another reason I accept the offer of The Southern Cultivator is that its subscription rate for one year is 25 cents, putting it within the reach of every farm home, even in these depressed times.

Another reason I accept the offer of The Southern Cultivator is that its circulation is scattered over a good many of the southern states, principally to farmers, while it goes into 50,000 Georgia homes.

The Southern Cultivator is the oldest farm paper in the southeast and its main efforts have been in behalf of the agricultural interests of the south.

I am not expecting The Cultivator to agree with me in what I write. There may appear other matters in The Cultivator with which I may take issue.

Miss Edwards Weds Former Atlantan In Asheville, N. C.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 28.—The marriage of Miss Bonnie Mae Edwards, daughter of Mrs. Dora Edwards and the late Captain William S. Edwards, to J. E. Duncan, of Atlanta and New York city, took place Saturday at a quiet ceremony at the home of the bride's mother at 224 Patton avenue. The Rev. T. A. Groce, pastor of the Acorn Methodist church, was the officiating minister. Only a small company composed of relatives and intimate friends was present.

An improvised altar of evergreens and ferns had been arranged in the living room for the taking of the vows. The bride and bridegroom entered together and unattended. The bride wore a traveling dress of independence blue triple chiffon with black accessories. She wore a shoulder bouquet of Sweetheart rosebuds and swans.

Mrs. Duncan is one of the city's music teachers. For four years she was the organist at St. Mary's Episcopal church in Grove Park. Mr. Duncan was the superintendent for Much Brothers, a clothing and postoffice. He is now superintendent on the new federal building and postoffice. He is left by motor for New York, where they will reside until the new federal building there is completed.

Miss Baxter Issues New Year Greetings

Miss Alice Baxter, honorary president of United Daughters of the Confederacy and World War educational fund chairman for the Georgia division, U. D. C., by request greets Confederate and World War veterans on New Year. She says:

"One recent Sunday morning Camp 159, Confederates Veterans of Atlanta, under direction of Commander G. S. Prior, held in the First Baptist church of Atlanta, caused forty-second memorial service in honor of deceased comrades. The church was crowded and, as the choir led with the old song, "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," the people united, creating a volume of ringing sound that filled the vast cathedral to veterans who had passed on.

The pastor, Dr. Ellis Fuller, presided over today's call for patriotism of peace. At the close of the service the vast audience, singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," stood in reverent attention as soldiers of the sixties marched out of the church.

"And now, as the New Year comes we give glad greeting to veterans of the Soldiers' home and to the thin gray line of Confederates wherever they may be. Christmas of 1861 found them, men, then in full vigor of manhood, serving at the front in that bitter War Between the States. Christmas of 1865 saw them, some back in their beloved homes. Their brave arms with its matchless leader, had surrendered to overwhelming numbers and resources." Accepting the arbitration of the sword, trained to hardship in war, these Confederates, with the new year, set themselves with unflinching courage to the building of a new south on the ruins of the old."

Forty years or more later veterans, sons of veterans, Daughters of the Confederacy saw their sons and grandsons enter the mighty World War struggle. Once again women of the south trod the via dolorosa.

The coming new year finds the world weary with the World War's aftermath. We greet on this New Year's Eve World War, Spanish-American, Philippine soldiers—all men of to-day tracing back to Confederate lineage. May they serve the entire nation with the unflinching zeal that characterized their forbears in the tragic period of reconstruction. May they so live that when a new century dawns a new generation will stand in reverent attention on war memorial days and in gladsome attention at the New Year as do Daughters of the Confederacy now in loyal greeting to beloved Soldiers of the Sixties."

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To quickly end stubborn coughs due to colds, it is important to soothe the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and to aid the system in expelling the waste products.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pineapple juice, 1 pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar to taste. Add honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, saves money, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it. There are three great reasons for this: First, it loosens the germs; second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief to those chronic coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pine is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. It is one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pine. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD,

I believe I am the victim of more trouble than anybody else in this successful school teacher. I was considered very attractive and told that I possessed a wonderful personality. I was a great favorite with the men at parties and dances, though I could never ask them to my home because I lived in such a dilapidated shack. Then my health failed and I became weak. I am now 30, very weak, and I have no time to undertake any social activities. Am I too old to try again after I get well or should I give up?

BLUE.

ANSWER:

My dear young woman, it is perfectly natural for you to be a trifle less attractive as being the victim of more trouble than anyone else in the world. But with returning health hope will also return. A friend of mine says only those who have lost health temporarily and regained it know the real enjoyment of it. Those who have lost it permanently are likely to have those thoughts of health tinged with bitterness. Those who are well and have always been well, take it for granted that those who have lost health for a while and regain it never lose the consciousness of being and feeling well. Tuberculosis is curable and, with a maximum of intelligent care and a minimum of worry, the convalescent period may be shortened.

Every experience is valuable to a thinking individual. A long illness often gives one the opportunity to think and to brood and to make a better evaluation of life than is possible when one is in the heat and fire of the work-a-day world. It often happens, therefore, that individuals who have lost health are more attractive persons are not. They have lost, they are far off from the combatants. They look on and see that many of the things the healthy are concerned about are things of small importance compared with the eternal verities of love and life and death.

In case you have formed the habit of indulging in wishful and unhappy thoughts about yourself and your future, here are two truths that will bear illuminating upon you. Protracted ill health may do a little damage to physical attractiveness. If people thought you attractive when you were well and complimented you on having a "wonderful personality" they will regard you in the same light when you are recovered from your illness. No doubt you will have a richer personality and a deeper attraction as a result of the long and bitter experience.

Another thing for you to consider is the futility of pretending to have more than you actually possess, whether it be beauty, character or money. Your friends chose you and cultivated you for what they saw in you to admire and enjoy and not for your worldly possessions. It was a mistake for you to refrain from asking your friends to your home because it was a "shock." Poverty is no disgrace. A girl is not discredited by the fact that her home is poor and her surroundings less attractive than she. Mighty few young girls would realize the truth. The average young girl would feel and believe in your idea. She would not care to keep her friends and associates from seeing her humble surroundings, and her poor domestic equipment, hoping that by concealing these things from them she could sustain herself at a higher level with them.

But that silly youthful stage is passed with you and at 30 you must consider that real friends do not discount you for poverty of purse, but only for poverty of spirit. When you get well are up and about take your friends into your home as well as into your heart. They will appreciate it.

And to your final question as to whether you are "too old to try again," I would remind you that with a woman, in this day and time, there is no such thing as age limit. Years do not deter the modern woman from undertaking anything that she wants to do. Witness old women buying and flying planes, women of all ages engaging in all sorts of business, politics, sports and social activities. Fanny Ward, flapper at 60, is no longer an oddity. There are many more, less well advertised, perhaps, but just as interesting. A woman of 30 is just as beautiful as she was when she was 18. She is still attractive. She is still the best sort of friend. As long as a woman feels interest in men she has something to offer them. As long as she desires their friendship she is equipped to reciprocate, provided, of course, that she possesses the come-hither in the first instance. In other words, a girl who was a great favorite at 20 can be a great favorite at 30. Those 10 years won't rob her of her charms, all things being equal. They will add to her spiritual and mental charms more than will diminish her physical ones.

Culbertson on Contract The Game Invitation Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Proponents of the Official System have claimed, as one of the merits of their system, that they have succeeded with considerable vehemence that the use of the Forcing bid of two in a suit, such as used in the Culbertson (Approaching-Forcing) System (sometimes called the "One Over One" System) of Contract bidding, prevents the bidding of wider and more important fields.

There is an old proverb which says that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating and not in the serving of the string." Hence, when Hand No. 4 was dealt in the present match in New Haven, between Messrs. Lenzen and Jacobs, on the basis of the Official System, and Mrs. Culbertson and myself on the other, as representatives of the Approaching-Forcing System, and first test of the game invitation bid of two by acknowledged masters of its use occurred.

Neither side was vulnerable.

Mr. Lenzen was the first to bid.

Mr. Lenzen started his unusual distribution rather closely before he finally passed, but the system had prevented him from learning that his partner had adequate support for his bid and hence he decided to let me bid.

When the cards went down, it was of course evident to Mr. Lenzen that he could make five odd-in diamonds and no-trump and that making six was a certainty. It had been six odds in clubs and seven in hearts.

It was a long wait. Jumper went all around the table, but he continued to sit for the longest time. Mrs. Reddy made up her mind that if she could not get a double or a slam, she would bid a small raise. She reached her hand over the table and said, "I'll bid a small raise." Mrs. Reddy made up her mind that if she could not get a double or a slam, she would bid a small raise. She reached her hand over the table and said, "I'll bid a small raise."

When Jumper did not respond, Mrs. Reddy said, "I'll bid a small raise." Mrs. Reddy said, "I'll bid a small raise."

Mr. Lenzen was the first to bid.

THE GUMPS—AND SO THE WORLD GOES ON

"Diffycult Hill"

By Faraday Keene

INSTALLMENT III
Willis was certain that Harrison wasn't thinking about pearl necklaces at all. Unless Willis knew nothing of such matters, Harrison was thinking that Sylvia was a very pretty girl, confound him! It would be a good job when those chaps were out of the house.

To Willis that evening dragged intolerably. But he made himself remember that it couldn't last forever. Supper was very good, and, of course, pretty soon after supper the interlopers would have to leave; they had quite a way to go. Nor did they know the roads to the west. They had lost their route coming from Fenchester and had come by very bad cross-roads all the way practically to the foot of the hill. They didn't even know which way to turn from the gate for Spofford Falls.

"Turn either way," said the professor, correctly enough, but gave one more sad proof of the aberration of his wits when he explained: "Although the right turn, past Brigham's filling station, is shorter, perhaps the left turn is better for a stranger. If you need help, the station of the state police is that way." This was incorrect. The state police were on the right-hand road, as Willis knew. But was he going to mortify the professor for the sake of these unwelcome strangers? Certainly not. Let them take a chance. He hoped they went in the ditch.

With some relish he said, "I'm glad I don't have to drive down this hill tonight."

"It's a lalapalossa," admitted Bain.

"After dark it calls for a lot better driver than I am," said Willis.

"O, Willis, you're a good driver!" protested Sylvia.

"No, I'm a bad one." This was true. Though every year he grew sturdier, Willis still had a serious hangover of nerves since the war. "I'm easily upset, and I have the sort of eyes that don't see well in the dark. Don't look so gloomy, professor! I haven't invited you to take a night drive with me!"

Just then Bain said sharply, "Somebody's taking a night drive up this hill right now!" and for the second time Willis heard the sound of a motor coming up the hill. But this was not the smooth sound of a good car; it was like the noise of a truck. An accent of displeasure in Bain's tone, as if he resented the arrival of anybody else, and a look of reflected sullenness on Harrison's face, gave Willis his first little thrill of uneasiness.

The headlights that came out of the trees did not stop before the open house door, however; they passed it. Bain, without a by-your-leave, had stepped out on the porch and leveled a flashlight at the passing car—a small truck, driven by a sulky young man who whirled it noisily round to the kitchen door. "Hey!" he yelled to Robinson, "lend a hand with this case!"

Some heavy bulk was heard to thump ruthlessly down on the back porch; the cross young man wanted to be off. "I think," murmured the professor, "that I'll just give something to that boy. So many people object to this hill." His disappearance was followed by the courteously modulated departure of the truck, no longer so noisy, but taken at a polite rate of speed by the sulky young man, the half-frightened young man. Shortly afterward Bain, pocketing his flash, came back into the house, and he also no longer looked dissatisfied.

On the Air Today

Eleven weekly radio concerts by leading chamber music ensembles of this country and Europe are to be broadcast by the Library of Congress Division of Music (Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation), beginning Monday afternoon, January 4, over the national networks of the Columbia and NBC systems which are co-operating in the broadcast.

The programs, to be announced later, will include standard works of the classical and modern repertoire, with occasional novelties. Various types of chamber music will be performed by distinguished artists—string quartets, a wind ensemble, piano trios, songs with string accompaniment, piano and violin sonatas, and other combinations of instruments.

The first five concerts will be broadcast by the Columbia system on Monday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock. The remaining six concerts will be given on Sundays from 10:30 a. m. to 12:15 a. m., and will be broadcast over the NBC chain. The schedule of dates and artists follows:

Mondays, 1 to 1:30 p. m.—Columbia network and WGST.

Jan. 4—The Roth string quartet of Budapest.

Jan. 11—The Barre ensemble of wind instruments.

Jan. 18—The Salzedo harp ensemble.

Jan. 25—The Gordon string quartet.

Feb. 1—The Cominsky trio.

Sundays, 10:30 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., NBC network.

Feb. 7—The Musical Art string quartet.

Feb. 14—The Elshouse trio.

Feb. 21—The Kroll string sextet.

Feb. 28—The London string quartet.

March 6—Nina Koshez and string quartet.

March 13—Jacques Gordon and Lee Patterson, sonata program for violin and piano.

These broadcasts, now in their third season, are the only radio concerts sponsored by a government institution. They have been made possible by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation, established in 1925 through an endowment by Mrs. Coolidge, which was accepted by act of congress. The object of the foundation is to further the cause of fine music, particularly chamber music, and to help bring such music to the public. Broadcasting is one of the means by which this aim is accomplished. The wide and warm response of numerous to previous radio concerts given by the Library of Congress led to the decision of the division of music to continue them this year.
